TAUGHT BY

FOR

The training is for everyone who is inspired to support new mothers or would like to know more about the postnatal 40-day resting period. We welcome professional birth workers (midwives, doulas, pregnancy yoga teachers) who would like to expand on their expertise or people who are ready to initiate a new professional path dedicated to the universe of birth.

WHY

Recent studies have shown that 35% of women experience symptoms of post-traumatic stress disorder after birth. Stress in the first few weeks after the baby's arrival contributes to breastfeeding difficulties, slow healing of the uterus, problems in establishing the relationship between mother and child, and the experience of postpartum depression. In addition, today more than 50% of couples separate in the first year after the arrival of a child. Having access to help allows them to take advantage and discover themselves as a "parent couple". Being supported by a postnatal doula allows time for introspection to be able to integrate the profound changes brought by motherhood or to find help if needed.

She has 3 children and 3 wonderful grandchildren!

POSTNATAL SUPPORT NETWORK

The Postnatal Support Network addresses the importance of a well-prepared and relaxing 40-day period after birth. It is an international organization with a non-medical and social network, informing future families of this special and delicate period of the lives of families..

PSN coordinates the requests and responses for qualified support. Offers training to those who wish to become postnatal "caregivers" or doulas who can provide holistic support during this postpartum period.

PSN also functions as a platform for research on the importance of the postnatal period for the immediate and long-term wellbeing of mother, child, family and the society at large.

Our work rests on three pillars:

EDUCATION

- Raise awareness among families about the relevance and impact of 40 days of rest and bonding for the mother, baby, family.
- Sensitize potential caregivers to the essence and relevance of selfless service.
- Educate birth professionals about the necessity and impact of the 40 days of assistance, the importance of preparing families for the fourth trimester and adapting preparation to their personal and unique needs.

AWARENESS

- Provide families with information and practical tools to organize their 40-day rest periods adapted to their personal needs.
- Implement a comprehensive international training program for postnatal professionals. The training provides theoretical and practical knowledge of why and how to serve the mother and her family.
- Create of a communication platform with national NHP coordinators networking with (local) birth professionals and sharing knowledge and information.

EXCHANGE

- Provide a platform for exchange between families and professionals at the local, national and international levels.
- Offer a space to submit offers and requests for support between families and postnatal doulas via our Directory.
- Provide content, such as articles, conferences and scientific research.

WHAT IS POSTNATAL SUPPORT?

Postnatal support is providing immediate postpartum care to a woman, her baby and her family. This support will allow the mother a healing space and an indispensable time to adjust to the new family constellation on a physical, emotional and psychological level.

It is offering a caring presence and non-medical support such as closing of the bones, massage and logistical support.

This is listening from a non-judgmental space to allow the newborn mother, if she wishes, to settle down and express her maternity experience in complete safety.

A social network of friends and family members can also be organized with a coordinator to cover all the necessary tasks: cooking, shopping, cleaning, laundry, support for other children in the family, massage, emotional presence.

The partner is often willing to take time off to be present and active at home, to help his wife. But, after about ten days, he has to go back to work, and the mother is quickly overwhelmed. Moreover, even if he is present, the partner can also benefit from postnatal support, in order to be more available to support his woman and connect with their newborn.

THE TRAINING

GOALS

This training is both an experiential workshop and a discovery of the basics and tools of the postnatal doula to start applying them.

We will discover together the different stages a woman and her newborn go through. We will explore the emotional phases that the mother, her child and her family experience. We will be introduced to the different practical and non-medical tools that can be put in place for the families being accompanied. Each participant will leave with concrete tools to extend the practice in his or her daily and professional life.

The training brings an understanding of the Fourth Trimester and the importance of being at the service of the family in their personal environment. Finally, it brings an understanding of the importance of networking.

At the end of the training, you will be able:

- To provide immediate postpartum support to a woman, her baby and her family.
- To provide a space for physical, emotional and psychological healing.
- To provide non-medical care, such as closing of the pelvis, massage, cooking appropriate meals.
- To accompany the young mother by active listening and non-judgment of her experience,
- Organize a local social network to cover all the necessary daily tasks.

CERTIFICATION PROCESS

FOR ALL PARTICIPANTS:

After participating in this 15-hour training course online, we ask all participants to do:

- Offer 40 hours of voluntary service (internship) with a family.
- The family will have to fill out a questionnaire and write a reference.
- The volunteer will write a report, a reflection following this experience (±2 p).
- Participants will be instructed by video and are expected to gain practical experience with : yoni steam, massage, rebozo ritual, closing of the bones

Once these prerequisites have been completed and validated by the trainer and the local organizer, the Postnatal Support Network will issue ovide a Certificate signed by the trainer and the organizer of the training. Once training is completed, participants can already create their profile on the Doula Directory on our website.

After one year, membership in the network must be renewed.
